

INTERNATIONAL CHORAL WORKSHOP

July 28 - August 1, 2010 at Stanford University

The International Choral Workshop is a program offered by Crystal Children's Choir in collaboration with Stanford University for children in grades 4 – 8. This five-day residential program is designed to provide choristers an opportunity to experience the culture diversity, the fleeting beauty of young voices through the choral music repertoire in an interactive, friendly and collaborative environment. Provide a life-changing experience for the young singers.

The intimate setting allows students to communicate directly with teachers, hear singers from different countries, and learn new stage routines in a positive, enriching environment. Throughout the program, students are encouraged to exercise creatively, see new perspectives, and build musical friendships.

This summer, the workshop will be located on the beautiful Roble Hall of Stanford University.
